

Imagine a school . . .

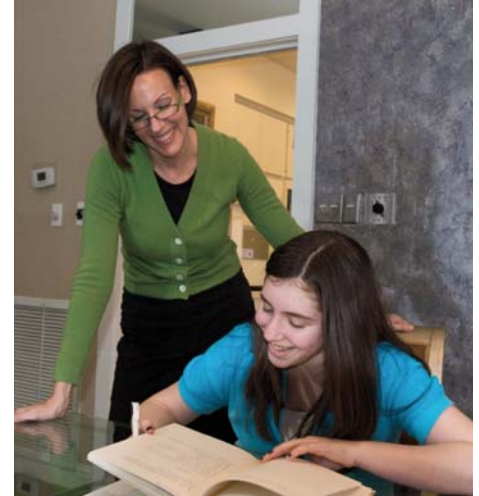

where your child is consistently taught how to achieve great success in learning and retention as well as how to attain positive leadership skills.

The Turning Point Academy (TPA) Grades 6-12 is one of the first models of the 21st century “in-house” schooling. TPA implements the most current research on how the brain learns. TPA provides our students with an impressive learning advantage. Our students enter college with high GPAs and a solid foundation of success principles. They have followed an impressive formula for becoming leaders of tomorrow who will foster positive change. All this occurs in a nurturing environment for the multi-sensory “children of now.” TPA is for all teens including teens whose potential has been often overlooked in traditional school settings. TPA forms a social network of students learning key habits for success that lasts a lifetime. These habits include positive interactions, daily goal setting, public speaking, community service and positive affirmations. Our students are taught how to put the Law of Attraction to use in their everyday lives. They learn to utilize the power within themselves as individuals and within the community to live their dreams and lead others to do the same.

The Appelbaums are the founders of The Turning Point Academy. As co-founders of the Appelbaum Training Institute, they are known throughout the United States for helping students grasp powerful learning strategies. Over 50,000 educators attended their professional development seminars and conferences in 2007. Marty Appelbaum has a degree in Business Management and is a certified Montessori teacher. He has worked as a teacher, an administrator and a principal. He authored two Early Childhood Education (ECE) courses used by college undergraduate students and is featured in “Chicken Soup for the Teacher’s Soul.” His teaching style enhances positive attitudes in the lives of all of his students. Carol Appelbaum’s goal is for the Turning Point Academy to become a model for how all grades 6-12 students are educated. She draws upon her 20+ years of spiritual knowledge as guidance in educating the teens at TPA to grow into conscious, spiritual beings. “The teens today are
